The Members of the Court and the Chaplain, Colonel Somerville and Major Stretton were formally presented to the Lord Mayor by the Clerk and the Lord Mayor having shortly opened the proceedings the Master delivered the following address:

My Lord Mayor, we are met together by your Lordship's great kindness here in your Mansion House, in order that we of the City of London may have our share in doing honour to these brave men, who have so conspicuously distinguished themselves on the field of battle.

To us of the Worshipful Company of Musicians it is an especial pride that these men who in times of peace pursue, in one capacity or another, the art and calling of Music, should have been found worthy of the
