

The instrument is called Bible Regal because, when closed, its shape appears like a large copy of the Holy Scriptures, the title 'Holy Bible' being lettered at the back. The arrangement of the bellows and the keyboard—which can be folded in half and enclosed in the 'Bible' when closed—is shown in the illustration.

ORGAN PIPES, ancient and modern, illustrating the varieties of shape and character.

Mr. H. Snelling.

Presented by George III. to one of his servants. The sounds are produced from twelve wooden pipes; and the keyboard is acted upon mechanically by means of small pins inserted in a revolving barrel, which is turned by a handle. The tunes playable are eight in number:—

The King of Prussia's Minuet.
La Promenade.
Miss Musgrave's Fancy.
The Waterman.

He is ay a kissing me.
Le Contrefaite.
Scotch Bonnet.
A Spanish March.
