Dear Mr Fenwick,

Now that I am home again and the very beautiful gift from the Court of our dear Company is safely here I feel that I must try to say to them through you what I could not say coherently, in consequence of an attack of surprise and delight. Ever since I first came among them they have treated me with unfailing kindness and friendship, - and I shall treasure their gift while I live and see that it passes down in my family as an instance of the good-will which indeed I haven't deserved but of which nevertheless I am very proud.

Yours most truly,

Dear Sir,

I am glad your Worshipful Company have accepted my late friend's MS. They will go on for ever, I shall not and the MS is now in safe keeping and I believe will be more and more valued as years go by.

Yours truly

B. R.

Please thank your Company.
